

Scorhill and Kes Tor

Distance: 3.5 mi./5.5 km. Time: about 1 hr 40 mins.

Park at Scorhill (SX664879). From the car park, take the gate on to the moors and follow the track left and up the hill. The path will bring you out onto the open moor where you will have views of Kes Tor to your left, Fernworthy Forest beyond and Cosdon Beacon to your right.

The track will then take you down the hill towards the North Teign River, but before that you will see Scorhill Circle on your right. It supposedly had 70–80 original standing stones but now only has 34 left. It is said that you cannot lead livestock or horses through it.

Walking back from the Circle, head towards the river, taking in the leat on your right, crossing over the stone bridge. Continue on the path towards the river crossing over two clapper bridges, one being the Wallabrook Bridge.

Take the path slightly left which runs parallel to the stone wall by the woods, keeping them on your left-hand side. Continue to the corner of the wall – Batworthy Corner – and here you will see Kes Tor in front of you. Stay on the nice wide path all the way up to the tor. The views from here are far-reaching and amazing. You can easily see Fernworthy Forest, where the reservoir is. Another great walk from here. You could keep going for miles...

Head back now the way you came to the corner of the wall, this time keeping the wall on your right until you come to the corner by the river. Walk down close to the riverside and left. You will come across a clapper bridge with metal straps holding it together. Cross this bridge and turn right, staying close to the water's edge. You will come to the Tolmen Stone, a large stone with a hole in it that you can actually pass through. You may need to be a bit agile though! The stone is said to have healing powers to cure various ailments.

Leaving the stone behind, track back to the left, the way you have come, with the river on your left, and you will eventually come back to the path you came down from the car park on. This track will now be on your right and will take you back up the hill and to the car park.
